Chrism Mass

This year's Chrism Mass will be held at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Crookston on Monday, March 26th, beginning at 6:30 pm. The Chrism Mass, is a beautiful manifestation of our Diocesan Church coming together around the Altar of the Lord. At this Mass the Bishop will bless the Holy Oils (Oil of the Sick, Oil of the Catechumens and the Sacred Chrism) that we will use throughout the coming year. It is also at this Mass that the priests of the Church will renew our vows of priestly service.

We are looking for people that would be willing to receive the Holy Oils for our parishes. If you are planning on attending this great liturgy and would be willing to receive these oils please contact the parish office and let us know.

Thank You.

Stewardship Minute:

"I will be their God and they shall be my people."
Jeremiah 31:33

What does it mean to be God's people? It means we recognize that everything we have and everything we are belongs to God. We aren't "owners" of anything, we are merely "stewards" of the gifts God has given us. It means we are willing to use our gifts and our lives to care for our neighbors and the world, just as God cares for us.

Stations of the Cross at Sacred Heart

5:30 PM Friday March 23

We will start with Stations, and then go downstairs for a light meal, followed by a video presentation from Bishop Robert Barron's Catholicism series. All are welcome to come to the whole evening, or whatever part they can attend. Hopefully this later time will allow more people to be able to experience this Lenten devotion, and gather as a community to build one another up in Christ.

Fifth Sunday of Lent

Collect

By your help, we beseech you, Lord our God, may we walk eagerly in that same charity with which, out of love for the world, your Son handed himself over to death.

Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

Prayer over the Offerings

Hear us, almighty God, and, having instilled in your servants the teachings of the Christian faith, graciously purify them by the working of this sacrifice.

Through Christ our Lord.

Prayer after Communion

We pray, almighty God, that we may always be counted among the members of Christ, in whose Body and Blood we have communion.

Who lives and reigns for ever and ever.

Adoration Moment

"It is the responsibility of Pastors to encourage, also by their personal witness, the practice of Eucharistic adoration."

Pope St. John Paul II

April 17, 2003 - "Ecclesia De Eucharistia (Church Of The Eucharist)"
Encyclical

The Feast of St. Joseph, March 19

The Church holds Joseph up for the veneration of the faithful as the believer who was completely docile to the divine will, the man capable of a chaste and sublime love for his wife, Mary, and the teacher ready to serve God's mysterious plan in the Child Jesus.

Tradition, in particular, has seen him as the worker. "Is not this the carpenter's son?" (Mt 13:55), the inhabitants of Nazareth exclaim when they see the miracles worked by Jesus. For them he is first and foremost the village carpenter, who expresses himself in work, fulfilling himself in God's sight by serving his brothers and sisters. The Christian community has also considered the life of St Joseph as exemplary for all who are involved in the vast and complex world of work. Precisely for this reason the Church wishes to entrust workers to his heavenly protection and has proclaimed him their patron.

The Church turns to the world of work, contemplating the carpenter's shop in Nazareth sanctified by the presence of Jesus and Joseph. She wishes to promote man's dignity in view of the questions and problems, the fears and hopes connected with work, a fundamental dimension of human life. She considers it her task "always to call attention to the dignity and rights of those who work, to condemn situations in which that dignity and those rights are violated, and to help to guide the above-mentioned changes so as to ensure authentic progress by man and society" (Laborem exercens, n. 1).

With regard to the dangers present in certain expressions of our contemporary culture and economy, the Church does not cease to proclaim the greatness of man, the image of God, and his primacy in creation. She carries out this mission principally through her social teaching, which "is itself a valid instrument of evangelization"; indeed, this teaching "proclaims God and his mystery of salvation in Christ to every human being, and for that very reason reveals man to himself. In this light, and only in this light, does it concern itself with everything else: the human rights of the individual" (Centesimus annus, n. 54).

The Church reminds all who attempt to assert the predominance of technology, thereby reducing man to a "product" or a means of production, that "man is the subject of work", since in the divine plan "work is 'for man' and not man 'for work'" (Laborem exercens, nn. 5-6).

For the same reason, she also opposes the claims of capitalism, proclaiming "the principle of the priority of labor over capital", since human labor "is always a primary efficient cause, while capital, the whole collection of means of production, remains a mere instrument or instrumental cause" (ibid., n. 12) of the process of production.

The right to work must therefore be combined with that of the freedom to choose one's own activity. These prerogatives however must not be understood in an individualistic sense, but in relation to the vocation to service and co-operation with others. Freedom is not exercised morally without considering its relationship and reciprocity with other freedoms. These should be understood not so much as restrictions, but as conditions for the development of individual freedom, and as an exercise of the duty to contribute to the growth of society as a whole. Thus, work is primarily a right because it is a duty arising from man's social relations. It expresses man's vocation to service and solidarity.

The figure of St Joseph recalls the urgent need to give a soul to the world of work. His life, marked by listening to God and by familiarity with Christ, appears as a harmonious synthesis of faith and life, of personal fulfilment and love for one's brothers and sisters, of daily commitment and of trust in the future.
